

NEW BUILDINGS FOR HEXHAM MIDDLE SCHOOL & QUEEN ELIZABETH HIGH SCHOOL

Invitation to a Public Drop-in Event

Hadrian Learning Trust (HLT), Northumberland County Council (NCC) and Galliford Try are pleased to invite you to a public drop-in event to showcase our proposals for the redevelopment of the Queen Elizabeth High School site, including the relocation of Hexham Middle School.

The proposals for the site include the refurbishment and extension of the historic Hydro building and Winter Garden, a new sports block, significantly improved external sports provision, and new car parking & bus drop off areas.

When completed, the redeveloped site will support the two distinct schools with separate facilities for each age group. The schools will have the same capacity as they do currently: Queen Elizabeth High School with capacity for 1,308 pupils (aged 13-18) and Hexham Middle School with capacity for 600 pupils (aged 9-13).

Galliford Try has been selected by NCC to design and deliver the redevelopment proposals. Galliford Try is a national contractor with lots of experience of building schools.

Invitation to a Public Drop-in Event

There will be an opportunity at the drop-in events to record any specific questions, queries or comments. If you prefer to do so afterwards, please email the team at: qehsredevelopment.uk@avisonyoung.com.

Representatives from HLT, NCC and Galliford Try will also be in attendance at the events to answer any questions.

After the drop-in events, display materials will also be available on the schools' websites: www.hexhammiddleschool.co.uk and www.qehs.net.
